Commander Fleet Air Jacksonville and Commander Naval Air Bases Sixth Naval District

Rear Adm. Kenneth Craig, a veteran of 30 years in naval aviation, is Commander Fleet Air Jacksonville and Commander Naval Air Bases Sixth Naval District and is also senior officer in the Jacksonville area.

Reporting here from duty as Commander, Carrier Division Two, Admiral Craig assumed his present post on 1 April 1959. A native of Galesburg, Ill., he was graduated from the Naval Academy 1926.

He first saw duty aboard the USS Arizona, then aboard the USS Niagara and as assistant coach at the Naval Academy before completing flight training in 1930 at Pensacola. Designated naval aviator on 2 October 1930, he was assigned as pilot of Observation Squadron 3-B, an aviation unit aboard the USS Nevada.

From 1933 until 1939 his assignments included service with various patrol squadrons and duty aboard the USS Langley. After reporting in October 1939 to Air Group Five in the Pacific, he became executive officer of VF-5 aboard the USS Yorktown. In November 1940 he was transferred to Patrol Wing Two at Ford Island, Honolulu, T. H., where he was stationed when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor on 7 December 1941. In July 1942 he was detached for duty on staff of Commander Patrol Wings, Pacific Fleet and later to the staff of Commander in Chief, Pacific Fleet.

Returning to the states in April 1943 he assumed command of NAS, Deland, Fla. in June of that year. Then came duty as skipper of the USS Sable and of the USS Croatan. While in the latter command he served concurrently as Commander Task Force Group 22.5.

He was awarded the Legion of Merit with Combat "V" for "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services from November 1944 through September 1945. By his resourcefulness, leadership and courage the Task Group successfully accomplished its mission of anti-submarine warfare, sinking three enemy subs in April 1945".

During the post-war period he served as Chief of Staff and Aide to Commander Carrier Division 4 and as Chief of Staff and Aide to Commander Fleet Air Quonset. He returned to the Naval Academy as Head of the Department of Aviation and in March 1950 was ordered to Washington to serve for a year as Aide to the Secretary of Defense.

Next came duty as skipper of the USS Midway; as Chief of Naval Advisory Group, Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.; Commander of Alaskan Sea Frontier and Commandant of 17th ND: and as Deputy Chief of Bureau of Naval Personnel and Assistant Chief of Naval Personnel.

From January 1958 until his Jacksonville assignment Admiral Craig held the post of Commander Carrier Division Two, his flag flying in the USS FDR (CVA-42) and the USS Intrepid (CVA-11).

CAPT
Commanding Officer, NAS Jacksonville

The 15th commanding officer of NAS Jacksonville in its 20-year history, CAPT James R. Reedy assumed command on 21 July 1959.

A native of Cleveland, Ohio, Captain Reedy attended Baldwin Wallace University, Berea, Ohio, prior to entering the Naval Academy from which he was graduated in 1933.

While at the Academy, he was captain of the Navy team that played the first intercollegiate football game in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium, against Notre Dame in 1932.

After leaving the Academy, Captain Reedy entered the U. S. Army Air Corps as a flying cadet, taking flight training at Randolph and Kelly Field, Texas. He was awarded Army Wings in June 1934. Subsequent to his Army flight training, he accepted his commission in the Navy and was made a Naval aviator in January 1935.

Prior to and during World War II he served aboard several ships with various squadrons. In December 1945 he was assigned to the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent River, Md. as assistant director of Armament Test and took part in the first atomic bomb test at Bikini during Operation Crossroads in 1946.

Captain Reedy served aboard the USS Shangri-La and USS Princeton, attended Armed Forces Staff College, was with Air Intelligence Division of the Navy Department, commanded the Navy's school of All-Weather Flight at Corpus Christi, Texas, served on the Staff of Gen. Alfred E. Gruenther at SHAPE Headquarters in Paris, and attended Naval War College before reporting to NAS Sanford, Fla. in July 1957 as Commander Heavy Attack Wing One.

When he assumed command of the USS Lexington in July 1959, Captain Reedy was the first man to fly his own aircraft onto the ship that was to be his command. He led the Lexington and her 3,000 officers and men through the difficult days of the Formosan crisis in August-December 1958.

History of NAS Jacksonville

The story of the United States Navy in Jacksonville begins with the establishment of the Naval Air Station Jacksonville.

In 1938 a special body, called the Hepburn Board, was directed to investigate "a southeastern naval air base." On July 18, 1939, Duval County citizens passed a $1,100,000 bond issue to purchase land in the area known as Black Point on the St. John's River. Fifteen months later, on October 15, 1940, the U. S. Naval Air Station Jacksonville was commissioned on this site and placed in operation. Thus, Naval Air Station Jacksonville became the only military installation in the nation established by direct gift of the people.

In 1940 the government invested $15,000,000 in what was then intended as a training base for Navy pilots. Congress passed an authorization for the expenditure of $68 million for the base. Almost immediately after commissioning the first cadets began their training and by the end of World War II more than 11,000 pilots and 10,000 air crewmen were trained here.

Through the years the task of the Naval Air Station has changed from a training activity to that today of an operational, repair and supply activity. Occupying a reservation of some 3,400 acres on the west bank of the St. Johns River just south of the city limits, the Naval Air Station has grown into one of the Navy's major fleet aviation operation bases. This vast military-industrial activity popularly known throughout the world as "NAS Jax" today has an estimated replacement value price tag of more than 500 million dollars.

The area where the Station is now situated teemed with military activity even as far back as 1918. An Army installation, called Camp Joseph E. Johnston, was located on the present site. In later years the site was occupied as Camp Foster and used by the National Guard.

Delving into further military history of the Station's location, a plaque situated under a huge oak tree on Mustin Road near the Hospital, notes that the Spaniard, Pedro Menendez, held a council of war with Timucuan Indians during the Age of Conquest; that Gen. James Oglethorpe established a headquarters on the site in his war on the Spaniards at Ft. Picolata; and that in 1812 American forces launched an attack on the Spaniards from near the site.

COMMISSIONING CEREMONIES—CAPT Charles P. Mason reads his orders making him the first commanding officer of the Naval Air Station during commissioning ceremonies at high noon on October 15, 1940. On the left is ADM John H. Towers, who was then Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics.

NAS Jacksonville today is the hub of the vast Jacksonville Navy Complex which includes a seaport carrier and destroyer basin at Naval Station Mayport; a master jet base at Naval Air Station Cecil Field; and the Jacksonville Naval Air Station Industrial Center.

The Station is home, or headquarters, for six separate commands. Commands based at NAS Jax include Commander Fleet Air Jacksonville, Naval Air Station, Commander Fleet Air Wing Eleven, Naval Hospital Jacksonville, Naval Air Reserve Training Unit, and Commander Naval Air Bases Sixth Naval District. Also housed aboard is the huge Naval Air Technical Training Unit where thousands of sailors and marines learn the aviational trades; and smaller units who all have played and continue to play an important role in the development and progress of this vast military-industrial "city" which is Naval Air Station Jacksonville.

NAS JACKSONVILLE,
FLORIDA

COMFAIRJAX

Commander Fleet Air Jacksonville's flag placed over the Administration Building on 1 November 1948 signified the change of NAS Jacksonville from a training command to that of a major fleet air base.

The first contingent of Carrier Air Group Eight arrived on the scene on 18 November, followed by Carrier Air Groups 17 and Two, and by 17 February 1949, with the arrival of Carrier Air Group Four, Fleet Air Jacksonville was in full bloom.

Since its inception, both the staff and the command have grown considerably in stature and in size. Today the staff numbers approximately 40 officers and 100 enlisted men and the command is comprised of nearly 50 various type units and squadrons.

With headquarters at NAS Jacksonville, Commander Fleet Air Jacksonville is responsible for training and logistic support of these units, which operate from bases scattered throughout Florida and at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, plus three aircraft carriers homeported at Mayport.

A master jet base, NAS Cecil Field, located about 15 miles west of NAS Jacksonville, houses five of Fleet Air Jacksonville's air groups, with a total of 17 fighter and attack squadrons and one photo reconnaissance squadron. Air Groups at NAS Cecil Field are One, Three, Four, Ten and Sixteen. The photo squadron is Light Photographic Squadron 62.

NAS Jax is home base for five attack squadrons that are units of the five Cecil Field-based air groups. Also based at NAS Jax are Heavy Photographic Squadron 62, Fleet Airborne Electronics Training Unit Detachment Two, and a detachment of Utility Squadron Ten, which is home-based at NAS Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

About 120 miles south of Jax is NAS Sanford, which is home for Heavy Attack Wing One and its subordinate Heavy Attack Squadrons. At NAS Key West are more units under operational control of COMFAIRJAX, including Carrier Anti-Submarine Air Group 50, with two component squadrons, a fighter squadron and an air development squadron.

Three aircraft carriers based at Naval Station Mayport, about 35 miles east of NAS Jax, are under the operational control of COMFAIRJAX. They are the USS Saratoga, USS Shangri-La and the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Commander Fleet Air Jacksonville is the senior naval officer for the Jacksonville area and is southern representative of Commander Naval Air Force, U.S. Atlantic Fleet, whose headquarters are at Norfolk, Va.

As area commander, COMFAIRJAX exercises administrative control of all Air Force Atlantic Fleet units in the Jax area which are not specifically assigned to other commands. He exercises command of and is responsible for the operations and training of all Air Force Atlantic Fleet units, ships, aircraft and shore facilities within the command area, and instigates and prosecutes training to insure combat readiness of units in accordance with their assigned missions. In addition he maintains close liaison with naval shore establishments in conjunction with training needs of fleet air squadrons.

In May 1957 Commander Fleet Air Jacksonville was given the additional post of Commander Naval Air Bases Sixth Naval District.

HISTORY AND MISSION

Heavy Photographic Squadron Sixty Two was commissioned at NAS Jacksonville in 1952 as VJ-62, but was redesignated in 1956 as VAP-62 and is still today the Navy's only long-range photo squadron berthed in the United States.

Since its origin in Jax in 1952, the squadron has moved to NAS Sanford, Fla.; to NAS Norfolk, Va.; and in 1957 returned to NAS Jacksonville.

Currently VAP-62 is flying the twin-jet A3D-2P "Skywarrior," a Douglas-built aircraft capable of performing both day and night aerial reconnaissance photography, as well as extensive cartographic mapping and radar photography. Use of these high speed jet aircraft makes for rapid and successful operations from land bases or carriers.

Stateside operations place a heavy demand on the talents of VAP-62, yet the squadron manages to maintain deployments on all points of the globe. Ordinarily, the squadron sends one or more aircraft detachments on specific assignments rather than deploy the entire unit. These detachments basically function as an individual unit, but have, on occasion, operated as part of the Sixth Fleet. During the squadron's existence, there have been as many as 21 self-supporting detachments seeing service on five continents. Commitments have ranged from the Chief of Naval Operations, U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. Army Map Service, Navy Hydrographic Service, Army Corps of Engineers, to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Together with the short-range work of Light Photographic Squadron 62, a Jax squadron based at NAS Cecil Field, the U. S. Navy might rest assured of complete photographic coverage whenever or wherever the need arise.

VAP-62 requires and carries a basic complement of 35 officers and some 300 enlisted men. The squadron is commanded by CDR John E. Cousins, with CDR Ward L. Berkey as executive officer.

COMMANDER CHARLES T. FROHNE, JR., USN

LTJG ROGER BARRY PAGANESSI, USN

PHOTOGAPHER'S MATE CHIEF,
RAYMOND VIRGIL SCHOMER, USN

The Navy's primary mission is to guard our outer lines of defense and to protect the welfare of our nation.

In order to carry out this mission, the Navy must maintain supremacy in the air and on the seas. As these operations involve hazardous duty, naval aviators and skippers of naval vessels along with many others in accompanying duties are assigned on a voluntary basis. This sense of duty is so strong that it automatically overcomes all fears and personal concern.

Out of the ranks of this volunteer service came three dedicated men, three of our beloved shipmates, who went down with their A3D-2P "Skywarrior" while serving aboard the USS Saratoga on 29 July 1960. These three, CDR. Charles T. Frohne Jr., the commanding officer; LTJG Roger B. Paganessi and Photographer's Mate Chief Raymond V. Schomer, were dedicated to the standards which have kept our nation from becoming a battlefield.

It is with great respect and admiration for their gallantry and courage that this portion of the 20th Anniversary Historical and Pictorial Review is dedicated. The memory of these men will live in our hearts forever.

CAPT C. L. Lambing, Fleet Air Wing—11 Commanding Officer

The history of Fleet Air Wing Eleven is long and colorful. Commissioned on 15 August 1942 at Norfolk, Va., during the height of the German U-boat campaign, the Command shortly thereafter moved to San Juan, Puerto Rico. During World War II aircraft of the Wing were credited with sinking ten U-boats and damaging 18 others. Fleet Air Wing Eleven has been based at NAS Jacksonville, its present headquarters, since January 1950.

Primary mission of Fleet Air Wing Eleven has always been the same since commissioning: to detect, track and destroy enemy submarines singly or in conjunction with other aircraft or surface forces. Additional responsibilities are: conduct antisubmarine escort of convoys and fleet units; protect fixed geographical water areas and installations against submarine penetration or attack; conduct offensive aerial mine laying; conduct enemy commerce destruction operations; conduct scouting, air surveillance and airborne early warning operations within the capability of assigned aircraft and equipment; conduct search and rescue operations as requested.

Aircraft types flown by the Wing squadrons have been varied and numerous. The list includes the PBY "Catalina"; PBM "Mariner"; P5M "Marlin"; PB4Y "Privateer"; and the P2V "Neptune" and airborne submarine destroyer.

Fleet Air Wing Eleven is the parent command of three patrol squadrons; Patrol Squadron Five, Patrol Squadron Sixteen, and Patrol Squadron Eighteen which are presently equipped with the P2V "Neptune," the modern "Work Horse."

Squadrons of Fleet Air Wing Eleven on numerous occasions have been called upon to perform unusual missions. The training of Brazilian Air Force flight crews and ground personnel in maintenance, flight training and antisubmarine operational training in the P2V "Neptune" June through November 1958 was a most rewarding accomplishment. In this modern age the location and recovery of re-entry vehicles is another assignment that has been successfully completed.

One of the most recent assignments and most vital to our country's security is the job of providing training to squadrons of the Naval Air Reserve on their annual two week active duty tours. While under the operational control of the Wing the "Weekend Warriers" receive realistic wartime training in the latest techniques of antisubmarine warfare.

NAVAL AIR MOBILE TRAINING DETACHMENT

LCDR Ralph M. Kingsley, Area Representative, NAMTG

Mission of the U. S. Naval Air Mobile Training Group is: to provide by means of Naval Air Mobile Training Detachments, technical training for officers and enlisted personnel in the operation, maintenance and repair of aircraft and associated equipment, and to conduct such other training as the Chief of Naval Operations may direct.

In 1942 the Chief of Naval Operations established mobile trainer detachments as a part of the Advanced Base Aviation Training Unit with headquarters at NAS Norfolk, Va. The size and responsibility of naval aviation was greatly expanded in World War II, and as a result, the mobile trainer detachments, through the use of highly qualified instructors and up to date training aids, thoroughly indoctrinated and trained fleet pilots, flight crews and maintenance crews on the operation and maintenance procedures to be applied to newly assigned combat aircraft.

During the latter part of World War II, headquarters was transferred to St. Louis, Mo. On 15 August 1945, Naval Air Mobile Training made its home at Memphis, Tenn. and was transferred to the Chief of Naval Air Technical Training under the administration of the commanding officer, Naval Air Technical Training Center.

The Korean Conflict again tested the usefulness of NAMTD as thousands of men were trained on the combat aircraft and jets used to fight the enemy. The versatile mobile trainer detachments accomplished their mission that contributed to the successful part that naval aviation played in Korea.

Now that the Naval Air Mobile Training Group is a separate activity it will continue to accomplish its mission and strive efficiently and effectively to help make your Navy a victor in war and a guardian in peace.

Present detachment of the NAMTG reported to NAS Jacksonville in 1951 and has been active on this station ever since that date. One officer, designated as the area representative, and 25 enlisted instructors are presently based aboard.

NAVAL AIR TECHNICAL TRAINING UNIT

Naval Air Technical Training Unit Jacksonville has been designated as such only since 30 June 1960. was formerly known as Naval Air Technical Training Center Jacksonville.

The Naval Air Technical Training Center, now NATTU, was first established as a branch of the aval Air Station Jacksonville when the latter was commissioned on 15 October 1940. The activity was reviously known as Navy Aviation Trade Schools.

In February 1943, the Naval Air Technical Training Center Jacksonville was assigned as a subordinate ommand of Chief of Naval Air Technical Training, whose headquarters at that time were in Chicago, l. CDR R. D. Higgins, USNR, was officer in charge and commanding officer during the latter days of e establishment of this training activity.

In February 1942, Major William T. Evans, USMC, reported as commanding officer of the newly ormed Marine Aviation Detachment.

A total of 21 new barracks were under construction in early 1942. In February 1942 the following chools were in operation: Aviation Machinists Mate, Aviation Metalsmith, Aviation Radioman, Aviation unnery Officer, Bombsight, Aviation Radar Operators, and Aviation Ordnanceman.

In late 1945 the Naval Air Gunnery School at Yellow Water, near NAS Cecil Field, became a unit f this command and was redesignated the Naval Air Gunnery Range. In October 1947, the range was rdered closed.

In January 1948 the Naval Air Technical Training Center was ordered consolidated with NATTC emphis, Tenn. On 5 April 1948 NATTC Jacksonville was disestablished and remained in that status until January 1951 when it was re-established as Naval Air Technical Training Center Jacksonville. Building 00 was headquarters for the commanding officer and the Center then consisted of approximately 65 uildings.

CAPT Lester K. Rice, USN, was assigned duties as commanding officer and CDR John A. Gamon, SN, as executive officer. Mission of the Center was to train selected officer and enlisted personnel in he technical duties required for the operation and maintenance of aeronautical equipment. Some eight chools were then in operation. By November 1951 there were 8,000 students and support enlisted personnel, pproximately 80 officers and 93 civilian personnel.

The Marine Aviation Detachment was formed on 8 January 1951 under the command of Major orman O'Bryan, with the mission of lending support to the Training Center by the administration of arine instructors and students.

A summary of the accomplishments of the Naval Air Technical Training Center from original establishment until April 1948 is not available.

This command has graduated over 100,000 students since 8 January 1951 from various schools and ourses.

Present assigned mission of Naval Air Technical Training Unit is to train aviation personnel in aeronautical phase of naval aviation and such other related subjects as may be directed by the Chief of Naval Operations.

NAVAL AIR RESERVE TRAINING UNIT

Waiting for a "weekend warrior!"

NARTU—A short title for a large organization consisting of over 1700 officers and men with a task of procuring, organizing and training the officers and men necessary in the event of a national emergency.

Three hundred active duty personnel stationed permanently aboard NAS Jax actively support 17 "Weekend Warrior" squadrons every weekend of the year. The 1400 Naval Air Reservists of these squadrons come from all areas throughout the State of Florida and Southern Georgia representing many different walks of life.

From its beginning in April 1946, when CAPT F. W. Priestman, took charge of the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit at Cecil Field Naval Auxiliary Air Station, NARTU has had a distinguished and progressive fourteen-year career. In September 1946, NARTU moved to NAS Jacksonville with only four "Weekend Warrior" squadrons and began the task of building and commissioning additional squadrons. The last squadron commissioned was Helicopter Squadron HS-742 on 1 July 1960 bringing the total number to seventeen.

Each man trains at NARTU Jax one weekend a month. Once each year each squadron makes an intensive two-week active duty training cruise at bases throughout the continental United States and overseas.

Presently NARTU Jax is under the command of CAPT Frank H. Holt and his executive officer is CDR Houlder Huggins. The Weekend Warriors are highly trained, well organized and fully capable of integration into Fleet Air Wings during any mobilization.

U.S. NAVAL HOSPITAL

U.S. Naval Hospital, Jacksonville, an independent command under the Management Direction of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery and the Military Control of Commandant, Sixth Naval District was commissioned on 1 July 1941.

The Hospital is located on Mustin Road in the southwestern section of the Naval Air Station. Construction of most of the buildings is temporary in nature, intended to meet the requirements of World War II, with a probable life expectancy of about five years. Twenty years later, the buildings are still in a fair state of repair and adequately serve the medical needs of the military forces afloat and ashore within hundreds of miles of the Jacksonville area.

Mission of the Hospital since commissioning has been to provide general clinical and hospitalization services for the naval shore activities and fleet units of the operating forces and in addition provide joint hospitalization services for the Army and the Air Force; to further provide on the job and technical training for Group X Hospital Corpsmen; to provide general clinical and hospitalization services for dependents of the uniformed services and other authorized persons.

Since commissioning, the Hospital has been utilized by varying numbers of patients and had a capacity of over 1,000 operating beds at peak operation in 1944. In the past few years, the hospital has operated with an authorized bed capacity of 400 patients. Currently, it also serves as the primary point for out-patient visits for military specialist referrals, retired personnel and dependents of all the uniformed services in the Jacksonville area.

The Hospital is staffed with medical and allied personnel covering practically every known field of medical specialization. Those few medical cases which cannot be handled by the hospital are air evacuated to other specialized treatment centers of the armed services.

Military personnel assigned to the Hospital number 312, with 116 officers and 196 enlisted personnel. Some 197 civilians are employed by the Naval Hospital.
